“

When I first felt the ripples of The Well, it was a cool breeze of something unconditional. Although I could not understand the future, I decided to embrace the cocoon of hope in becoming a butterfly. I decided to take the resilience that made me a survivor because I now want to live. I decided that the clothing of a warm embrace was not just something I wanted. The Well's ripple was a cool breeze of unconditional love.

I am grateful for Hon's Honey because without the steady work that it provides, I would not have been able to replace my car so quickly after an accident earlier this year.

Hon's Honey believes in people over product and my ideas help to shape things here. I am learning about the software that we use daily and how to do wholesale orders. I am learning how to communicate effectively and how to build business relationships.
